

DEATH OF GEN. CROOK.

The Intrepid Indian Fighter Suddenly Summoned.

STRICKEN WITHOUT ANY WARNING

While exercising with dumb bells, immediately after arising from bed, he has an attack of heart disease and dies in a few moments—A brief sketch of the military career.

General George Crook, 41 years of age, died at the Grand Hotel, Decatur, Ill., Saturday morning, March 21, 1890, at 7 o'clock. He was a native of New York, and was a member of the 1st New York Cavalry, and was killed at the battle of the Clouds, Texas, in 1856.

A Fourteen-year-Old Boy's Struggle for His Family in New York

New York, March 21.—A boy of 14 years of age, but very small, dressed as a messenger, a little girl 9 years old, and another perhaps 6 years old, appeared at the bar of the New York court Wednesday. The pathos of their story when it was told, created the sympathy of the court and the tears of many. The father of the two little children, John Moran, came from England with his wife and two children, and lived in the city for a few weeks, and then he died. The boy, who was 14 years old, was the only support of the family. He had often a position as a messenger, and had a small salary. He was a very brave and intrepid soldier, and was known as the "Intrepid Indian Fighter." He was a member of the 1st New York Cavalry, and was killed at the battle of the Clouds, Texas, in 1856.

President Frank E. Snow and Stockholders W. A. Jackson, of Detroit, R. A. Robinson, C. H. Shields, T. J. Minsey and W. G. Barrett, of Louisville, arrived in the city yesterday on business connected with the Decatur Short Line. They personally inspected the proposed extensions and decided on others, due publication of which will be made. The gentlemen were much pleased with their visit and thoroughly satisfied with the Short Line's prospects. They left for their homes last night.

Another Loser.

Manager McLaren, of the Lakeside Organ company, who has been here several days settling up his company's share of the E. G. Lodge business, will leave this morning for Chicago. His company loses about $400. Yesterday Hodge gave him a quit claim to the house on North Main street that he built last summer. It only amounts to about $150, as that was all that had been paid on it.

Fine Horses Sold.

D. W. Breneman & Co., the fine stock importers, made two important sales yesterday. One was to Michael & Hudson, of Sullivan, Ill. They bought the imported stallion, Nallston's Honest Boy, for $1500. The other was to George Wagoner, of Emery, who purchased the imported Clydesdale Stallion, Carjick Prince, for $1200.

The Play Last Night.

Folks at the Grand Opera House last night were taken out "On the Frontier" sure enough. There were blood and thunder and Indian whoops and paleface wails and love and heroism and—rot. There was a crowd in the gallery; the balcony was full filled and the parquet was almost deserted.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Some of the New Views For Our Special Edition.

There have been several "write ups" of Decatur, but there never has been one that had any original illustrations, but the pictorial features have always consisted of the cuts used by different firms in their business, and there have never been any attempt to represent the beauties of the many elegant homes that Decatur boasts.

It is in this department that our Illustrated Trade and Industrial Review will be conspicuous. Our artists have already taken a large number of cuts, and from the present prospects their work has hardly commenced. Here are some of the views that will be prepared especially for this edition, the views in nearly every instance being three columns wide.

An exterior of the opera house block as it will be when completed this year.

The Decatur brewery, showing all the late extensions.

The factory of the Mueller Mfg. Co.

An exterior of the block occupied by Linn & Serugg's dry goods store.

A handsome bird's-eye view of the factory of F. B. Tait & Co.

A view of the buildings and elevators of the Hatfield Milling Co.

An elegant engraving of the new office that is to be erected this year of artificial stone by L. L. Martin.

A view of the Mills' planing mill and adjoining buildings.

Portraits of prominent citizens will also prove an attractive feature and several orders have already been received.

The residence views will be of great interest outside the city as showing the beauty of our city. Already engravings have been ordered of the handsome residences of J. M. Ciokey, Harry Cassell and R. E. Montgomery.

It is very desirable that those who wish to have their residences or places of business represented in this work are earnestly requested to take prompt steps. It will be left at this office the artists will call any where in the city and give any desired information. As the work of engraving necessarily takes a great deal of time, it is important that this be attended to at once.

Orders for extra copies are still coming in at the rate of several hundred a day. Have you sent in your order for a dozen copies yet?

A Surprise Party.

Misses Kate Riley and Annie Welsh planned and executed last night a most charming and delightful surprise party at the Hotel Brunswick, in honor of Misses Lizzie Leech and Annie Panning. The company gathered about 8 o'clock. The young ladies had arranged to have the large dining room furnished with the music for the evening dance that passed the hours away. Elaborate refreshments were served at 11 o'clock. The company dispersed at 12 o'clock. Those present were:

Levy Rude, Darke Hammer, Ed Dawson, John Lee, Charles Winholtz, Elmer Hersh, Chatley Millsap, John McDonald, Arthur McDonald, John McBeth, Doc McBeth, Will Brown, Will Towney, Al Thompson, C. H. Kreible, John Bennett, Lute Barnett, George Fulton, Virg Sanders, John Kelly, Dan Higgins, Mrs. Thompson, Will Simonds, George Shupson, Harry Leon, Arthur Boutwell, Ed Lowry.

No Wonder There are Divorce Courts.

A married man who lives in the northern part of the city, has been in the habit of spending too many of his nights away from home, and rumors came to the ears of his wife that a dizzy blonde was the cause of his absence. Himself and a lady friend determined to investigate, and their investigation located the dizzy blonde in a room on Merchant street. Slipping quietly to the door of the room she occupied, these ladies managed to get a look through the transom, and discovered the faithless husband and frail maid in the arms of Morpheus, and in each others arms also. They were secured and the couple were routed out of the room. The husband was allowed to accompany his wife home, and presentation will depend on his future good behavior. The girl in the case has threatened to suicide, and is being watched, although not under arrest. She is in a delicate condition, and there may be some interesting developments for some one to explain away in a few days.

Mr. Mills at Jacksonville.

Rev. B. Fay Mills started out well at Jacksonville. Arriving there he was met at the depot by a delegation of pastors. At night 500 people were waiting at the State street Presbyterian church before the doors were opened. Mr. Mills preached the same sermon that he preached here the first night. The crowd was so great that an overflow meeting was held at the Baptist church.

A civil engineer has been looking Niagara Falls over and his conclusion is that it is good for 3,000,000 years. That's long enough for any one's purpose to last, and the people of that generation can hunt for something else.

The Supervisors had an interesting session and did some good work. They handled the public park question just right; neither throwing the valuable property away to satisfy the whims of a life nor yet getting to themselves the charge of selfishness. Decatur is now put upon her honor to give the people a first class public park.—State Sentinel.

There is at least one man who takes no stock in the assertion that "marriage is a failure." He lives in Montgomery county and has just wedded his sixth wife. Every one of his wives brought him a farm, and he is now one of the largest land proprietors in the country. This shows that marriage is a great success if it is managed properly, and that if a man sticks to the business the same as to any other he is bound to come out ahead.

A Novel Suit For Divorce.

At the next session of the Vermillion county Circuit Court a singular divorce case will come up for hearing. A similar case has probably not appeared upon the docket of any court in the state of Illinois. Edward Barker and Nellie May Burroughs, both residents of that county, were married Dec. 9, 1889. Neither were of age and they were enabled to enter the marriage relation through the consent of their parents. The young husband learned that his young wife was unfaithful, desired to secure a divorce, but being of lawful age he was compelled to file his petition for the dissolution of the marriage. Barker, his next friend, filed a petition for the wife so that she could be brought into court.
